

Secrets of Area 51 Productions Revealed!

Reported By Diane Matson

After months of digging and dead-ends, the spotlight unearthed some formerly classified secrets of Area 51 Productions, including the company website - www.area51productionsllc.com.

Their goal - to create Weapons of Mass Entertainment. One source, who wishes to remain anonymous, whispered these include webisodes, commercials, and features. The insider revealed the first two missions and their code names:

“I Gave You This Tree,” centers dramatically around the bond between a brother and sister, struggling to survive after losing their father.

“The Sacred: Bride of the Gods,” employs visual effects that explore ancient myths and lore, based on secrets (to be revealed in the novel “The Sacred”).

Trained professionals employ specialized equipment that include several Panasonic GH2 Pro-Cams, a 12' / 8' conversion Kessler Crane, the REVOLUTION remote pan-tilt head system, full lighting kits, a green screen, K-Flex track system, and a mobile data center.

We managed to decode two production secrets:

- 1 - Establish a good, reliable work habit.
- 2 - Never give up - failure is never final or certain until you quit.

When pressed, a man, who would only provide the name “Déous” admitted Area 51 Productions is set up to be a family-friendly environment.

Another source, using encrypted emails, revealed Area 51 Productions plans to give a wide array of jobs to unemployed artists and production people. The company wants to establish a work-place, where writers and story creators have active voices alongside the director.

A paper with company letterhead included the following: We seek to harness the energy and enthusiasm of film students by assigning them positions, or utilizing them as interns, in their area of expertise, so they acquire experience on real film projects. In a margin, someone scribbled, “interns - build/work on render-farms.”

Unconfirmed rumors whisper of a pre-visualization company called Crash Site Studios. No investigators were able to confirm or deny the validity of this.

Despite persistent efforts, we could only verify that Area 51 Productions is based out of an undisclosed location in Olympia, WA. By means we'd rather not reveal, we know building designs indicate a self-contained, green-friendly studio. The structure houses many different departments, including Art, Sound, CGI, Special Effects, and even a small movie theatre.

Who are the operatives who actually run the company? We discovered names, photos, and biographical information, but were warned not to disclose them. It is entirely possible the company website (www.area51productionsllc.com) shares these specifics.

Seek more, if you dare. Spread the word, and this leak will become an unstoppable flood.
